File:Section 5 Equation 1 in 5.4.2.2 Basic Export calculation.png

In dyadic analysis, the balancing process between outflows and inflows varies based on whether the forecasted variable is directed or undirected (see again Table 5.2). For directed variables such as trade we simply forecast one side of the flow. With trade we forecast exports and then mirror it to create the respective dyad and sector specific imports.

This page was last edited on 8 May 2023, at 18:25.